

TO ALL
 Prime-Ministers, Chief-Governors, Deputies, Justices, and Secretaries, that are or may be,

Jobber
 This is to give Notice,

THAT there is to be hired, and will be ready to enter into Service by the 15th of September next, or sooner if required, A complete, thorough-paced, Ministerial Jobber; who by long Practice under different Masters,

and

J. R. R. Cox

and having been Counsellor to the Counsellors of the several Factors, Overseers, and Agents that have been sent hither for thirty Years past, is at last perfectly qualified for any Post or Employment, and ready to undertake whatever he may be called or appointed to, generous or servile, honourable or dishonourable.

His Parts are curious and delicate, and his Principles exactly fitted. He has the whole Theory of modern Politics in his Head, and is an Enemy to all Systems : Of such Sagacity, that he can tell precisely from what Point the Wind of Court-Favour will blow at any given Day, and with Certainty compute its Force and Velocity, so as to determine when to trim or furl the Sails, when to tack, veer, or be steady ; he has a Conscience susceptible of any Impression, and pliable to any Form, and yet so callous that nothing can pierce or give it Feeling, and can accommodate himself to all Times, Tempers, Occasions, and Circumstances : He can bounce and bully, lye, shuffle and swear, fetch and carry, lick, crouch and lie down, sneak behind, or run before, as by a Nod or a Sign he is directed ; for all which happy Talents and Attainments he can, if required, bring genuine Certificates from the different Masters he has served ; but for easier and more unexceptionable ceptionable Proof, chuses to refer the Curious to his many memorable Votes, Speeches, and Lucubrations, 'to be seen under the different Titles of Antidotes, Vindications, Reviews, Letters of Advice, Charges to Grand Juries, a curious Collection of MS. Letters soon to be published, and a Multitude of inimitable Pieces weekly dispersed in the Univ——l Adv——r, wherein he conceives he has clearly affirmed and contradicted, maintained and given up, reciprocally proved and disproved, all that has been or may be advanced by himself or by others on the several Topics of the Prerogative of Princes, and the Rights of Subjects, the Duties of Electors and Representatives, and many other interesting Questions debated under the Heads of Barracks, Votes of Credit, the Interest and Independency of Ireland, City and Country Elections, &c.

In Parliamentary Craft he is a Veteran and Adept, can judge to a Second the critical Moment for putting a Question, and when to protract a Debate; how to puzzle a Question, and to perplex and confound an Evidence. For forming of Cabals he has no Equal, and in dividing and uniting of Parties, how jarring or concordant soever their Sentiments or Opinions may be: Of the whole Science of propagating Faction, by Libels and Lampoons, by Detraction and Slander, he is perfect Master, and boasts a superior Skill to any who have yet appeared in what there is some Difficulty in defining, but is generally well understood by the modern technical Term Dirty Work: Above all, he has the True Elixir or Grand Secret for restoring Disbanded Placemen, which he distributes gratis at the Shop of Matthew Williamson in Dame-street, hermetically sealed, and to prevent Counterfeits marked Probatum est R^{ub} C^{or} K—, where, out of Pity and Compassion to his own dear self and other languishing Patriots, he constantly attends from the Hour of twelve to four in the Afternoon, and where the delicate, squeamish and jealous of their Reputations may send their Proposals directed to DIONYSIUS.

As on various Accounts a Person so qualified is at this Time much wanted, it is proper to inform the Public, that he has another extraordinary Particularity to recommend him, that in spite of the Art and Industry used to conceal them from him, he knows all or most of the Secrets of the Cabal, now distinguished by the Name of Patriots, all their Ends, Interests, and Views, the Quantums of their Merit, and the lowest Penny at which they would compound; and, under proper Encouragement, will discover all their Schemes and Machinations, as also how

how they may be successfully foiled and defeated.

Though he has never been out of Service, yet by contingent Deficiencies in the Finances of his present Masters, greatly in Arrear with him for Wages, he is at present a little shabby, and for that Reason only has declined offering himself at the common Mart, where such Servants are usually hired.

He has of late appeared in the Garb and Form of a Whig, but it is well known that he is come of right orthodox high-flying Tory Parents, and instead of being taught when a Babe to lisp the Glorious Memory *, he never till of late drank any Memories at all, is still of the same sound political Faith of his Ancestors, and if not prevented by unhop'd Contingencies, means to live and die in the same.

If he is suspected of being religious, which has been sometimes thought an Impediment to great Enterprizes, he freely appeals to his Parish Minister, whom upon several Occasions he has magnanimously hallooed, hissed, bullied and cheated; whether he has been seen in a Church for two Years past, except at a Vestry, to stop Salaries or hinder Repairs, or with a Bible in his Hands except when examining a Deponent, yet for his true rational and manly Piety refers to that devout and excellent Form of Prayer lately composed and fitted by him to the Occasion, in the Univ—l Adv—r of Tuesday, May 20, and for his Modesty, Discretion, Gratitude to Benefactors, Respect and Reverence to his M—y and his Representatives, to those incomparable ones of May 27 and 31.

To prevent Trouble, the lowest Wages he will hire at is a middling Country Collection, an equivalent Pension, or any Civil Employment of the same Value, but as he has a natural Antipathy to the Smell of Gunpowder, he will accept of no Post in the Army; and all concerned are desired to take Notice, that were it not for the low disordered State of his own Finances, he would not offer upon such easy Conditions, as they are much lower than he had under his late Master, or was promised by his present ones.

N. B. No Proposals will be received after the said 15th of September, his present Masters having offered to raise his Wages, and to pay off his Arrears, if he will continue in their Service, as also to ease him of the Trouble of going on Errands, and the Discredit of wearing a Livery. In which honourable Office he is then to be succeeded by the facetious and humorous A—C—, Esq; who has served as a Lacquey to a Noble-

Nobleman of the first Rank for some time to qualify him for the same, and with them he has conditionally contracted, if he cannot do better for himself by that Time.

Note farther : That the said Dionysius has invented a new Kind of Ink, red in Appearance, but which blackens better than any yet imported or in Use, and which Merchants in Town or Country may be supplied with at reasonable Rates.

Members of the Staff have for some time been doubtful as to the value, and with them he has considerably contracted, if he cannot do better for himself by that time.

Very recently, that the said Staff has invented a new kind of ink, and in the past, but which has been better than any yet imported or in use, and which has been in Town or Country may be supplied with it
